Death Of Mrs. T. E. Moore, Jr.

Mrs. "Tommie" Thomas Moore, wife of County Attorney T. E. Moore, Jr., died at her country home, the residence of Mr. and Mrs. Dick Marsh, in East Paris, at 2 o'clock yesterday morning. Mrs. Moore had been ill several days from an attack of blood poisoning. She was apparently on the road to recovery when peritonitis, complicated with other troubles, set in, and death followed shortly.

Mrs. Moore was the youngest daughter of the late Capt. and Mrs. James M. Thomas and was known to everybody as "Baby Tom" from her earliest years until she reached womanhood.

She was a young woman of excellent qualities, a steadfast friend, hospitable and generous to a fault and possessed a wide circle of friends and acquaintances who admired her for her lovable graces of mind and heart. She was married several years ago to Thomas E. Moore, Jr., now County Attorney, who, with three children, Wm. Estill, Rogers and Marian, survive her.

The funeral services will take place at the residence of her sister, Mrs. John Ireland, the old Thomas home, on South Main street, this (Tuesday) afternoon, at three o'clock, with services by Eld. Carey E. Morgan. The pall-bearers will be: Frank Walker, Claude M. Thomas, James M. O'Brien, Dr. Wm. Kenney, Rudolph Davis, Harry Marsh.

Mr. Moore has the sympathy of the entire community in his bereavement.

Yerkes Resigns.

John W. Yerkes, of Kentucky, Saturday resigned as Commissioner of Internal Revenue, which place he has held for several years. He will enter the practice of law in Washington, having become associated with an important firm in that city. Mr. Yerkes resigned partly on account of his health, but also largely on account of the fact that his recommendation in the distribution of offices in Kentucky has not been as highly regarded as his position would justify. His successor has been named by Secretary Cortelyou, but has not been announced.

Weather Conditions.

The unseasonable weather prevailing throughout this section the past few days has been productive of a great deal of grippe, rheumatism, pneumonia and other kindred complaints. The cold spell has worked havoc with gardens and young fruit, while the crops of young wheat, clover, oats, etc., are believed to have been seriously damaged. Taken all in all, the weather clerk has surely been in an angry mood since the closing days of March.

There is no refrigerator better than the Gurney. Come in and see. Compare our prices with other first-class makes and see how much less we sell them.

Who! What! When! Which! Why!

PERTINENT PICKINGS.

An old lady of this county, who knew very little of the workings of modern railroad train, recently made a trip to Louisville.

In the vicinity of Frankfort a skunk was run over by the train and his remains were scattered along the track for some distance. The train had not run over half a mile from the scene before one of the axles developed a hot box and the train was of course stopped. The fumes of the burning oil and packing mingled with the aroma of the eat, and the old lady wanted to know what delayed the train. When a man told her it was a hot box she put her handkerchief to her nose and said it was the first time in her life she ever knew that a hot box smelled like that.

A fashion writer displays his density of his ignorance by stating that "the kimono will be worn, as usual, in the boudoir." The kimono is an alluring Japanese garment which is worn by a woman when she knows she will be surprised on the front porch by a man who has never had an opportunity to see how fetching she can be in negligence.

A former Mayor of Baltimore, who eloped with his trained nurse three months ago, has returned to his wife. That lady is now in a position to give her practical demonstration that all hell is not divided into politics.

The mathematical genius who has pointed out that, by abstaining from stogies during the term of your natural life, you may own a suburban cottage should show how many suspension bridges you could build if you employed the time you waste waiting for a shave in a barber shop.

A Pennsylvania judge ordered a woman who wore elbow sleeves into his court, to put on her coat and thus plainly infringed upon the inalienable right of every woman to bare arms.

A well known woman writer boasts that she has sprung nearly 12,000 cooking recipes on the public since she began appearing in the newspapers. We will now all arise and sing, "Amazing grace! And are we yet alive?" after a short session of wondering how many of them have been tried upon us.

A conductor on a Paris and Lexington interurban car had such a good run of business Sunday afternoon that he had difficulty in keeping himself supplied with small change. Many persons who patronized his car handed him dollars and bills of larger denominations in payment of their fares.

The conductor, however, managed to get along fairly well until a woman, carrying a tiny infant, boarded his car. When he approached the woman for her fare she handed him a $5 bill.

"Is she the smallest you have, madam?" queried the conductor, fearing another stringency in change.

The woman looked at the conductor and then at her baby, and replied: "Yes, I have been married only twelve months."

Here is a good fellowship story that is going the rounds: Give a man a ten-cent cigar and he will shear all over and love you for six hours; offer him the 10 cents with which to buy it for himself and he will throw it in your face! Give a man a pass to a show and he will call you a good fellow in all the languages at his disposal; offer him the money to buy a ticket, and he will call you a fool. Ask a man to your home to take "pot luck" and he will jump at the chance; give him $2 and tell him to get a good meal at a cafe with your compliments, and he will knock you down. The dollar is mighty, but it isn't warm.

A Carlisle man asserts that he recently saw a rat with horns. As the authorities insist that local option law is being enforced in Carlisle, there must be something radically wrong with the soda water in that city.

Speaking of strong union labor sentiment, my wife was telling me she encountered the real thing a few days ago," said a prominent railroad man.

"We have been having a negro to do chores about the house at odd times and my wife concluded to give him one of my discarded hats, which was one of the recognized high-class makes and as good as new.

"After the negro had finished his work and received his pay he was told to wait a moment and my wife went in the house and returned with the hat. His eyes bulged out with delight when he was told that it was a present for him. After he had looked it over and turned the sweat band back look of disgust overcame him and he handed the top piece back to my wife.

"What is the matter with the hat, inquired my wife. "Don't you want it?" "Missus, I likes de hat but it is a 'scab' hat and again my principles to wear it," replied the negro, and nothing could induce him to take it.

A Louisville church is going to have impressive services celebrating the second anniversary of the installation of a pipe organ. This is the limit in the celebrating line and it now remains for some enterprising congregation to celebrate the installation of a fluted water pipe or the purchase of a ton of coal.

A Paris man whose wife was quite fat was caught flirting, and made a rather novel explanation of his conduct. "The great ambition of your life," he said to his wife after being caught, "was to become slender. Knowing there was no efficacy in the stuff known as Anti-Fat, I resolved to flirt away your superfluous flesh. It wrong my heart to do it, but I was willing to make any sacrifice for your happiness. So I flirted, and you began to lose flesh. You are now as spirituelle as you ever wished to be. Come to my arms, and say you never doubted me."

The only way to stop people from pasting a stamp at any old place upon the envelope, except the right one, is to do as is done in England. There a letter which does not have the stamp in the right position is cast aside and handled only when all other mail is sorted and exchanged. This mail was advanced by a clerk in the Paris postoffice. "We often loses considerable time because of these letters," continued the clerk, "for often we have to stop and turn over an envelope to find the stamp. The worst offenders in this respect are not foreigners, but those who have lived here for years."

Feudist Case Transferred.

The case of Tom Cockrell, the oldest surviving member of the Cockrell faction of the Cockrell-Hargis feud, charged with flourishing a revolver on a passenger train was transferred from the Lexington police court to Paris. The offense is alleged to have been committed on an L. & N. passenger train between Paris and Winchester. Cockrell was presented in Justice J. P. Howell's court yesterday morning, and waived examining trial. He gave bond in $300 to appear at the June term of court.

Who Is To Blame.

If, as the railroad presidents and trust magnates are declaring, there is a period of business depression ahead, who is to blame for it? It must be charged to Republican management and policy, for that party has had full control of all departments of the government for the past ten years and if there is any needed legislation, or any bad laws that ought to have been repealed or amended, there has been ample time and opportunity to attend to it.

If monopolies of transportation and manufacturing have been encouraged and created, until their own excesses they have defeated their own prosperity—the Republican party alone is to blame.

If the tariff has fostered trusts, that are gorged on the profits of an exploited people, so that reaction and business depression are possible, who is to blame?

If the cost of living is inordinately high and workingmen are striking for higher wages, the reason is apparent and must be charged to the Republican policy of trust protection as the chief cause.

If the goose has been killed, that has laid the golden eggs, by stuffing her with prosperity that was only intended for trusts and corporations to feed on, who is to blame?

If the wheat farmer finds that the price of his product is low and protected trust prices are high, so that his profit is little, if any, will he blame his own skill as a husbandman and a kindly nature that has produced good crops or the tariff that has fostered trusts which are protected in charging increased profits and for which the Republican party is responsible?

There is one thing certain that any prosperity that the farmer, the business man, or the workman has enjoyed, who receives no protection or benefit from tariff or other monopoly, must work out his own salvation, for no system can be contrived that will help everyone without everyone paying his own share or even more than his fair share.

So while the heathen of Wall Street rage and the railroad magnates prophecy vain things, the much greater number of people must be satisfied with no help or protection from the Republican party who claims all the avenues of prosperity as of its own making. It behoves such not to be flustered with the croakings of the trust and corporation birds of evil omen, but to protect themselves by such political action as will abolish monopoly and install equal rights to all and special privileges to none.

Why They Are Not Printed.
Newspapers are forbidden by postal regulations to publish anything relative to the outcome of a lottery, raffle or other game of chance, or to advertise the same. This information which has already been made public several times, is repeated for times, is repeated for the benefit of persons who, not having knowledge of this law, send in "news items" in regard to such affairs and wonder why they are not printed.

New Telegraph Rates.

The Western Union Telegraph Company has announced a new scale of telegraph rates, but fortunately for Kentucky it will not effect the present rate to points within the State and the larger cities just over the line. An increase is made in the night rates to Cleveland, Chicago, Philadelphia, Pittsburgh and in fact all big points East, North, South and West. In Kentucky, where the telephone companies are competitors of the telegraph, the rates are unmolested.

Chulita Sold.

Dan Morris has sold his two-year-old Chulita, by Kingston, from Concertina by Chorister, to Mr. Alex Labold. W. J. Young will train Chulita for Mr. Labold, who has entered his recent purchase in all the events open to two-year-olds in the West.

A Narrow Escape.

D. Harold Johnson, of Mt. Sterling, formerly of Paris, had a narrow escape from death while climbing the incline plane on Lookout Mountain near Chattanooga. His companion, Mr. Smith, pointed out to him the spot where a killing occurred several days ago, and Mr. Johnson turned to look. He slipped and fell through the space between the ties, catching by one hand just in time to save himself from falling to certain death on the rocks over three hundred feet below.

Resolutions Of Respect.

Death is no respecter of persons. We are here today and gone tomorrow. We live, breathe the sunshine and the air and perfume of the flowers and tomorrow death has laid us low.

In the death of Brother J. W. Hughes Rathbone, Lodge No. 12 Knights of Pythias has sustained the loss of a good and faithful brother, a true friend and Knight. The wife has lost a kind and loving husband, the community a good and useful citizen.

He was a friend to all, ever ready to do a kind and charitable deed, helping suffering humanity always and everywhere. We mourn his loss and we shall miss him in our Castle Hall.

We extend our heartfelt sympathy to the bereaved widow and family and share their sorrow in this time of such sad bereavement.

Resolved, That a copy of these few words though poor they may be, expressing the sorrow we feel, be spread upon the minutes of the Lodge and a copy sent to the widow and sorrowing family that they may know we join in their sorrow.

Kentucky-Jamestown Notes.

The Kentucky-Jamestown-Exposition Commission, of which J. B. Atkinson of Lexington, is president, is continuing its canvass for funds whereby the building and state exhibits at the Exposition may be properly maintained from time to time. The Fiscal Court of Jefferson County, last week, appropriated $5,000 to the sum already raised in Louisville by popular subscription. A number of Fiscal Courts have made appropriations and the subject will be considered by other county courts this week and next.

One car load of the exhibits representative of Kentucky's mineral wealth has already been sent to the Exposition. This display will be made in the Mines Metallurgy Building, one entire end of the building having been assigned to Kentucky. A car containing exhibits from the forests and farms of the Bluegrass State has also been started for the Exposition. Kentucky will have a space aggregating 2,500 square feet in the States Exhibit Building.

Announcement is made at the headquarters of the Kentucky Commission that a total of $750 has been subscribed to the Building fund by the school children of the State. These subscriptions were made on "Jamestown and Beowulf Day" which was observed in the school on December 12 last. Names of pupils contributing to this fund will be appropriately inscribed in the Kentucky Building.

The Burley Barbecue.
The Society of Equity of Fayette County and sympathizers will give a grand barbecue to the tobacco growers of Kentucky at Woodland Park, in the City of Lexington, on Thursday, April 25, 1907. The people of Fayette County will provide ample entertainment for all who come, and there will be speaking in the large auditorium on the grounds and from several stands on the outside, by many of the leading men of the State who are in active sympathy with the tobacco growers in their fight for better prices for their product. The object of the gathering is to bring together the growers from every county for consultation, instruction and mutual benefit, as well as to extend the list of signers of the 1907 crop. Such a gathering must necessarily assure greater enthusiasm for our cause.

We expect to be able to announce within the next few days reduced rates over all of the railroads running to Lexington. We extend an earnest invitation to every tobacco grower in the State to attend this barbecue as our guest and to bring his friends with him.

W. B. HAWKINS, Chairman.
A. M. HARRISON, Secretary.

District Convention.

The Eighth District Convention of the Christian church, embracing the Bible School Association and the Woman's Board of Missions, will be held at Owingsville, April 25 and 26. The Eighth District is composed of the counties of Bath, Bourbon, Clark, Harrison, Montgomery and Nicholas, and it is expected that delegations will be present from many of the churches of the district. The first day's sessions will be occupied by the C. W. B. M. and the second by the Bible School Association.

His Dear Old Mother.

"My dear old mother, who is now eighty-three years old thrives on Electric Bitters" writes W. B. Brunson, of Dublin, Ga. She has taken them for about two years and enjoys an excellent appetite, feels strong and sleeps well." That's the way Electric Bitters affect the aged, and the same happy results follow in all cases of female weaknesses and general debility. Weak, puny children too, are greatly strengthened by them. One Sided Justice.

"Roy Bean, Justice of the Peace—The Law West of the Pecos," was the sign over the shanty where lived the man who for years was the only representative of the law in the great territory west of the Pecos river in Texas. Langtry, named for the Jersey Lily, was his postoffice, and he did business under the honorary title of Chief Justice Bean of the Pecos, making a tidy sum on the side by selling post cards bearing the picture of his queer justice shop. Years ago, when the Southern Pacific was being built, some cowboys came in on a tear and shot up the town, incidentally killing three Chinese coolies who were working on the railroad. There was a roundup, and the cowboys were brought before Squire Bean. There was much testimony, and the trial was long. At its end he gravely said:

"The testimony shows that these three Chinamen were killed by some of the men on trial. It is pretty clear who did the fatal shooting, but the prosecution has utterly and entirely failed to show where the statutes of the state of Texas make it a crime for a white man to shoot a Chinaman. The prisoners are discharged."—New York Sun.

A Cat's Boarding House.

A woman who had engaged board for two cats at an animal boarding house stopped at the desk on her way out and said: "Oh, by the way, I forgot something. What do you give your cats for Sunday dinner?" "The regular fare," said the proprietor. "I would like you to make an exception in the case of my cats," said the woman.

"They have been used to special dishes at home on Sunday, and I am sure they would miss them very much. I am willing to pay extra for the care and expense." "That," grumbled the animal man after acceding to her request, "is one of the peculiar phases of this business. Half the people patronizing a place of this kind insist upon providing a few choice tidbits for the Sunday dinner of their pets. It is bound to ruin their digestion, but whenever there is a clause in the contract to that effect special Sunday and holiday fare prevails."—Philadelphia Record.

Sunday Theatricals.

Sunday theatricals had a rough time of it at one period of England's history. On Sunday, Sept. 27, 1631, Shakespeare's "Midsummer Night's Dream" was privately performed in the bishop of Lincoln's house in London. The Puritans had the affair inquiry into, and there is a suspicion of humor in the punishment awarded to the performer of Bottom, the weaver—"We do order that Mr. Wilson, as he was a special plotter and contriver of this business and did in such a brutish manner act the same with an ass' head, shall upon

I was a man, but thus have made

Myself a silly ass."

Lincoln's Much Quoted Words.

Perhaps the most famous address ever made by President Lincoln is the one that he delivered at the dedication of the soldiers' monument on the battlefield of Gettysburg, and the words most quoted from it are "the government of the people, by the people and for the people." This phrase was no doubt an unconscious quotation, for the same words were used by Theodore Parker in an address to the Anti-Slavery society May 13, 1851. Nor was the phrase original with Parker. Daniel Webster in 1830 used the words "the people's government, made for the people, made by the people and answerable to the people." And even before Webster Chief Justice Marshall had expressed the same idea in similar phraseology.

Tunneled the Register.

A bookworm or some such creature has left his mark upon a volume of the "British Annual Register" of the year 1810 in a club library of New York. The worm ate its way through seventeen leaves of the volume, and for much of the way its path has outlined something very like the crouching figure of a cat, with one ear erect and a short tail. This figure is repeated upon eight or ten leaves and then gradually becomes less clearly defined until the progress of the worm is marked by a single small hole.

At Dinner.

"Who is the taciturn man opposite, next to Miss Smith?"

"That is Louis the Fourteenth."

"Louis the Fourteenth?"

"Well, you see, his name is Louis, and he is called the Fourteenth because he's only asked to keep us from being thirteen at table."—Fliegende Blätter.

The Strain of Society.

There should be an eight hour day for "fashionable" women. We cannot talk scandalously for twelve, as we do now. The excitement and the strain upon the imagination are terrible.—London Truth.

Managing Director—Well, and what are your qualifications for the post of night watchman? Applicant—Well, sir, for one thing, the least noise wakes me up.—Bystander.

Humors of Sculpture.

"When architects insist on decorating the facades of public buildings with symbolic groups," remarked a New York philosopher, "they often add unconsciously to the humor of everyday life. Just look at those two cherubs over the central window on top of the hall of records, for example. How can any one with a memory ever forget the scandals of the construction of that building in looking at these two figures? One of them is plainly going over the account books of the work, while the other one is peering downward, as if he were trying to get a glimpse of that imitation marble work that has been put up on the walls of the upper stories. And the best of it is that such stories last. Who ever went to Washington for the first time that he did not have to listen to that yarn about the statue of Columbus on Washington or some one else that stands in front of the capitol, throwing the ball up to the Goddess of Liberty on the dome?"—New York Press.

serious a bit of girlish folly, a foolish pique which one kind word from you would have melted, for all that let it go. The past is past. But John, my boy—must his life, too, be spanned? He loves your daughter. She loves him," unheeding the squire's angry flush. "Must they lose their youth and let life's sweetest years be sacrificed merely to satisfy a dislike of me, Levi?" A passionate energy layed her eager words.

"Dislike," repeated the squire thoughtfully. "Dislike. Was it really that?" Whatever his faults, the squire was truthful. "But, Hetty," a sudden warmth breaking into his voice, "Hetty, you said—you said too. Do you mean that you married Did you, Hetty?" with compelling eyes.

"Yes," said Mrs. Wetherby. "I cared. And you went away, you never wrote, and so at last I married Johnson Wetherby. He was a good husband." A sudden impulse of loyalty toward the dead surged within her.

"And I married Susan Marion," mused the squire aloud, but he was conscious of what he was saying. A great wonder held him fast. Was this the quiet, self-repressed woman who all these years had sat across the table from him every Sunday morning in church, this slender, vibrant creature, trembling in the might of her demand for happiness of her son? Was this the woman whom he had believed without feeling? In a sudden flash of insight he caught himself, a man conscious of the hidden resentment which year by year hardened character and face, while she—A tender reverence slowly crept into the stern old eyes.

"Come," he said gently, "we'll have some dinner, and then we can talk about John."

When, a week later, the squire's long-pulled-up before the house-carried laden porch of home, the woman's brows were drawn together into a semblance of his former frown. The mouth held its accustomed lines. Only in the deep set blue eyes a new light gleamed irresistibly. But Susie did not see. The girl came slowly to the door. Close behind followed a tall, slim young fellow with steady brown eyes. The squire stared.

"Father," announced Susie, pale, but resolute, "I want to tell you at once that I'm married to John. The blank license for any one needing them were on your desk already signed. It was only necessary to fill in the names. I—I hope you forgive me. But if you don't," as her father still stared with features unrelated, "I'm ready to go. I couldn't leave the house alone, though. And, besides, I wanted to tell you myself. We were married this morning." The squire's own defiant will seemed from her blue eyes. She was his own child, all right, the squire recognized, with an amused recollection of his former thought, and he could hardly forgive himself for issuing a license to a son without her parent's consent, this own name being signed to the document.

The squire threw down his reins.

"Well," he capitulated, "if it's done, it's done. And we were planning to give you such a fine wedding." Then as an amazed "we" broke from the startled girl, Squier Godfrey turned over and patted the curly head.

"I'm not going to scold," he broke out heartily. "I'm married now. My wife is waiting now at the hotel for you to come; said I must tell you myself first. So run and get on your coat, John," while a long, searching look passed between the two men as Squier met, "you've got to be a son to me now. Your mother has taken me at last."

Revenge Is Sweet.

In ordinary life he was a very important person, for he was a judge; but alas, his liver got out of order just the same as if he had been an ordinary mortal, and a brother luminary had advised him to take a Turkish bath. It was a luxury he had not previously indulged in, and he noticed that the rubor was terribly rough. However, he patiently endured being punched, slapped and poked until he could stand the torture no longer.

"Is—it—qui-te—nece-sa-ry—to—me—black—and—blue—all—over?" panted his lordship.

"Never you mind; you're all right," responded the rubber, redoubling his energy and grinning diabolically.

"Who (slap, groan) are (that, groan) you?" gasped the judge, a horrible suspicion dawning in his mind. "What (whack, groan) face does (whack, groan) look fa—(groan) look fa—(groan) millar?" (whisk, groan).

"Oh, you remember me, do you?" growled the rubber sarcastically.

"Well, mebbe you'd like to have the chance to send me up for six months again for prize fighting—what?" Pearson's Weekly.

An Important Event.

An event out of the ordinary will be the engagement here of Jeanne Marno, America's greatest reader, under the auspices of the A. J. Lovely Company. Uniformed Rank Knights of Pythias, at the Grand Opera House on the evening of Friday, April 19. The local knights intend to make this a gala night and have started to boom their attraction. Miss Marno will give her adaptation, "The Lion and the Mouse," that stirring play of the hour, in which that master dramatist, Charles Klein, has gripped a vital problem of the day. Here is what one noted critic says of Miss Marno's art: "The dramatic reading of Israel Zangwill's 'Merely Mary Ann,' by the gifted artiste, Miss Marno, was, to my mind, something unique and charming as to itself, and highly suggestive from an artistic point of view. Miss Marno gave the story with admirable talent in all ways. Her tone carried, her enunciation was pure and round as a pearl, her voice color was suited to the characters portrayed, and, taken for all in all, I found it enthralling in a high degree. There is a wide suggestiveness in this way of dealing with dramatic literature. If novels are to be dramatized, why should not the process be revised and our dramas given us abridged and in story form? Miss Marno is abundantly endowed with that highest of all desiderata for a public entertainer, magnetism, and whatever the emotion to be conveyed, she carries it to her listener's inmost heart as along currents of electric power. Her talents are growing year by year, and there is no reason why she should not attain national fame." —J. S. Van Cleve, in the Cincinnati Times-Star.

Lovers of music will also be accorded a treat in the appearance of Miss Westfield, pianist, whom as been a member of the faculty of the Cincinnati College of Music. These two ladies give an entertainment that appeal instantly to audiences of culture and refinement.

Miss Marno is socially known to many Paris people as Miss Mannheimer and they will be out in number to welcome her.

Suspected Murderer Arrested Here.

Ed. Turner, alias Doc Starret, an alleged fugitive from justice was arrested at the L. & N. Station Saturday afternoon by Officer Ben Bishop and placed in the Paris jail for safe-keeping. Officer Bishop received a telegram from Detective J. S. Henry, of Chattanooga, Tenn., who was at Winchester, asking that a man on the train answering Turner's description be placed under arrest.

Starret is accused of the brutal murder of his wife, Lillie Turner, on April 2, her body being found on Lookout Mountain with her throat cut from ear to ear.

Starret claimed to be in the employ of a lumber firm at Farmers, Ky., and was on his way to Iowa to visit his parents.

Turner was apprehended at Winchester by Detective Henry. While waiting for a train the prisoner eluded Henry and came to Paris.

Turner stoutly asserts his innocence and claims that the wrong man has been placed under arrest.

Henry came to Paris and fully identified his man. He returned to Winchester for the purpose of looking up Turner's record and to secure a photograph and other evidence.

At the jail Turner refused to make a statement of any kind regarding his case beyond the assertion that he was not the man wanted.

The police authorities here have refused to surrender Turner until positive evidence as to his identity is produced.

Well Intended.

"Goodby, Jessie!"
"Goodby, Auntie May. I hope I'll be a great big girl before you come to make us another visit." —Woman's Home Companion.

Dog That Climbed a Tree.
Can a dog climb a tree? A correspondent writes: "While on a walk on snowshoes in New Hampshire, we tracked a porcupine to a balsam fir, in which it had taken refuge. My Scottish terrier climbed the tree, pulling herself up from branch to branch to a height of about seven feet, where a space of bare trunk separated her from the porcupine, which had watched her progress with evident alarm. The terrier made several ineffectual attempts to scale the smooth bark and finally jumped down into the snow." And of another curious trait the same writer continues: "This little dog and her mate, now dead, though enthusiastic fire worshipers at home, never sat near the bonfires built at luncheon or tea time on winter walks, but dug holes in the snow at a little distance, in which they curled themselves up after the manner of their primitive ancestors." —Chicago News.

Processes Which Defy Analysis.

I think that the more thoroughly and conscientiously we endeavor to study biological problems the more we are convinced that even those processes which we have already regarded as explicable both by chemical and physical laws are in reality infinitely more complex and at present defy any attempts at a mechanical explanation. Thus we have been satisfied to account for the absorption of food from the alimentary canal by the laws of diffusion and osmosis. But we now know that, as regards osmosis, the wall of the intestine does not behave like a dead membrane. We know that the intestinal wall is covered with epithelium and that every epithelial cell is in itself an organism, a living being with the most complex functions. We know that it takes up food by the active contractions of its protoplasm in the same way as observed in independent naked animal cells. —A. Bunge.

Her Valentine.

A young woman wrote about the year 1750: "The night before St. Valentine's day I got five bay leaves and pinned four of them to the four corners of my pillow and the fifth to the middle. And then if I dreamed of my sweetheart Betty said we would be married before the year was out. But to make more sure I boiled an egg hard and took out the yolk and filled it with salt and when I went to bed ate it, shell and all, without speaking or thinking after it. We also wrote our lovers' names upon bits of paper and rolled them up in clay and put them into water, and the first that rose up was to be our valentine. Mr. Blossom was my man. I lay abed and shut my eyes all the morning till he came to our house, for I would not have seen another man before him for all the world."

Burley Tobacco Society.

To each County Chairman:

At a meeting of the Executive Committee held in Lexington, Ky., on Thursday, April 4th, 1907, the following being present: C. S. Williams, S. T. Prewitt, R. B. Thomas, J. R. Bassom, G. W. McMillen, and C. Lebus, it was unanimously agreed that a full Board meeting be called to meet in Lexington, Wednesday, April 24th, at 9 a. m., at the Phoenix Hotel, being the day before the barbecue, so that we will get through in time to attend the barbecue.

You must work every day and insist that each precinct chairman put in every possible minute toward securing the 1907 pledges; and, if you have a precinct chairman who is not pulling as he should, get someone else to canvass his precinct, and report it accordingly to the full Board meeting.

Be sure and call in all your pledges and have them copied in book form, and bring all these pledges and book to Lexington April 24th next.

By that time we must know how much 1907 tobacco is signed and who or what county will make the worst showing. Work with pride; work hard; work now; work tomorrow; work until April 24th, and make the best showing.

C. LEBUS.

President of the Burley Tobacco Society.

As Others See Us.

The Washington Post says: "A curious lawsuit has been concluded in Bourbon county, Ky., and the plaintiff has been awarded $10,000 in damages because the Republican County Committee read him out of the party. He sued for $25,000, and thus paid his party a high compliment. The St. Louis Globe-Democrat says: 'It is very significant that a jury, undoubtedly composed mainly of Democrats in a county called Bourbon, should estimate that a man read out of the Republican party is entitled to as heavy damages as this jury awarded.' Strictly speaking, there can be no such thing as reading a man out of the party. Any voting citizen is always free to cast his ballot for the candidates of any party. It is his right, also, to believe in the policies of either of the various parties and to search for any party's alleged principles. There are, however, party organs that undertake to determine whether or not conspicuous members of their party are orthodox in faith. Now and then a bumptious committee-man essays this role. It will, perhaps be recalled that a standpat daily in New York 'read out' President McKinley and Secretary Root, appending to each of them the tag 'Free Trader,' because the strove to secure fair treatment for the Porto Ricans. For a long time after the demand for tariff revision began to be heard on the Republican side of the fence every prominent National Republican was tagged, and the ridiculous practice still obtains to a limited extent. For example, Gov. Guild of Massachusetts, is pictured as a black sheep wearing the 'free-trader' brand. No Republican can be a free trader, and very many Democrats are protectionists."

PERSONAL MENTION.

Cattle Breeders To Organize.

A very important meeting of the beef cattle breeders of Kentucky has been called for today at Lexington to organize a State Association of Beef Cattle Breeders and for the discussion of vital matters concerning the beef cattle interests of the State. The objects of the Association will be to promote the interests of beef cattle in all their respective branches and to encourage by educational means and other influences the use of pure-bred beef bulls by the general farmer.

Some years ago Kentucky held the premier position as a beef cattle breeding State, and it was the common practice among the leading breeders in the United States to come to Kentucky to secure fine animals to head their herds, but of late because of some lack of interest and the consequent use of scrub and half-bred bulls the stock has degenerated and the State has lost much of its former prestige. Today farmers are producing a large number of common steers, and, finding the business unprofitable, are losing interest in the business and by degrees disposing of their cattle.

A New York judge is said to read his own poetry to prisoners at the bar. If it were at any other bar, it would doubtless drive his listeners to drink.

"Be sure it has six light rooms, all outside," abjured Grace.

"And remember it must be in a nice neighborhood," added Molly.

Rowena sighed. "I'll try," she said resignedly, and, tucking her umbrella under her arm, started down the stairs. It was a cool day, with a gray sky and a promise of rain in the air. The streets and boulevards had the faded, dusty look that late summer always wears before the first frost arrives to sharpen and brighten things. Vans laden with furniture passed with a frequency which proclaimed that moving time had come.

"I must remember that all places look less cheerful on a dull day," said Rowena to herself, taking a list out of her pocketbook and running over it with a rumbling eye.

"Bright, attractive apartment, six rooms and bath." I think I'll try that one, though they all advertise them as attractive, and the reality is a lot of Senator Bate's Authority.

The late Senator William B. Bate of Tennessee was a major general in the Confederate army and never quite reconciled himself to the defeat of the south. Soon after he came to the senate he formulated a set of rules which he called "Rules for my proper legislative guidance." Whenever a proposition came up about which he was undecided he would take the printed slip containing these rules from his pocket and study it carefully.

"Bate," said a colleague one day, "what is that slip of paper to which you refer so frequently?"

"That," said Senator Bate, "is a little reminder of my belief on constitutional questions."

"Where did you get it? Think it out yourself?"

"No, sub," replied Bate, with much dignity; "I found most of those immortal truths in the constitution of the Confederate States of America."—Saturday Evening Post.

"Orchestra" and "Noise."

In Shakespeare's time no musical dictionary could have distinguished between "orchestra" and "band," for the simple reason that neither word was then English in a musical sense. "Orchestra" did not appear before the eighteenth century and even "band" not until the latter half of the seventeenth, when Charles II. had a "band of violins," in imitation probably of Louis XIV's "bande." The old English word for a band of music was "noise." "See if thou canst find out Sneak's noise. Mistress Tearsheet would fain hear some music," says one to the other at the Boar's Head tavern. And just so Ben Jonson has "a noise of fiddlers" and "a noise of trumpets." The old word is wanted for many a gathering of musicians outside this writer's flat.—London Chronicle.

Writing on a Train.

"No matter how fast and rough the pace," said a brakeman, "you can write with perfect ease and comfort on a train if you hold a cushion on your lap. You rest your tablet and your arm on the cushion, and somehow or other neither jolt nor jar disturbs you. The soft cushion nullifies every tremor. Your writing is as legible as if it had been done at your desk at home. We railroaders have a good many accounts to make up while traveling, and hence we usually have a cushion handy. Drummers and other experienced travelers are great hands to borrow our cushions from us when they have a bit of correspondence to attend to."

A Criminal Attack.

On an inoffensive citizen is frequently made in that apparently useless little tube called the "appendix." It's generally the result of protracted constipation, following liver torpor. lot more sociable, and two heads are better than one, you know. Besides, down at the beach this summer that Hawkins man monopolized so much of your time that it's only fair for me to have my innings now. Shall we go to Seventy-sixth street next?"

"Do you realize," said Rowena a week later as they sat on a bench on River-side drive, "that time is flying and we've found nothing—absolutely nothing—so far?"

"But we've had a lot of fun," Dwight replied, smiling reminiscently as he thought of sundry strolls they had taken in the park, sundry luncheons tête-à-tête in the little casino, sundry car rides to perfectly irrelevant places, and all with the ostensible excuse of flat hunting.

"This is good enough for me," he went on, with a look first at Rowena and then at the river, where myriads of water craft plied up and down. Steam launches puffed portentously, sailboats gleamed in the sunlight, and an excursion steamer churned past, all flag flying and a band playing lustily on deck. The rows of stone houses facing the drive were closed and silent, the lower windows boarded up, while the half shut blinds of the upper ones gave them a semblance of supercilious drooping eyelids.

Rowena toyed with her parasol. She was looking dangerously demure in pale blue. A tip tilted, coquettish hat sat lightly on her well poised head.

"I feel like a perfect culprit when I return at night," she confessed. "The girls fuss over me and say what a hard day I must have been through."

"I know," echoed Dwight, grinning sympathetically. "The fellows tell me that I'm a brick and that they're no end grateful, while as it is I'm having the time of my life! Must we really go?" he pleaded as Rowena abruptly gathered up her gloves and parasol.

"I simply must decide on something today," she said, a ring of determination in her voice. "I cannot put it off any longer."

"Let's try this, then," suggested Dwight, looking up at a white stone building on a side street. "This is 29. It looks pretty spick and span, doesn't it? I have an idea that it will do."

Rowena gave a regretful shake of the head.

"It's too small," she declared, glancing about at the little drawing room. "But, oh, what a darling! It's the loveliest one we've seen anywhere! With a little money and a little taste it could be made a perfect jewel box. How the sun streams in, and how dear and cozy this drawing room would be."

"With a window seat there," said Dwight, "and a bookcase against the wall."

"And some pictures and bits of bric-a-brac on the mantel!" Rowena glowed with enthusiasm.

"And a low round table and a reading lamp," added Dwight delightedly.

The voice of the ever present janitors broke in on them. "I think you'd like it," she observed. "It's just the place for young married couples."

Rowena gasped and retreated. Dwight followed.

"Dear," he besought, "you know it's exactly as she says—it's meant for us and no one else. Ah, Rowena, won't you say that the light which shines through these windows will be our home light? Won't you say that every night at dinner time the woman I love will be waiting here to welcome me? Won't you say—and there was mirth in his voice as well as tenderness—won't you say that our flat hunting is over?"

Rowena hesitated.

"I don't know," she began demurely. "I hadn't meant to lease my heart so soon, but since—since so desirable a tenant has applied it seems only right to oblige him with a permanent occupancy, provided he keeps it in good repair."

Pullman's Giant Passenger.

There was one story of his career that Mr. Pullman used to tell with manifest delight. One night, going out of Chicago, a long, lean, ugly man, with a wart on his cheek, came into the depot. He paid George M. Pullman 50 cents, and half a berth was assigned him. Then he kicked off his boots, which were of surprising length, turned into the berth and, having an easy conscience, was sleeping like a healthy baby before the car left the depot. Along came another passenger and paid his 50 cents. In two minutes he was back at George Pullman.

"There's a man in that berth of mine," said he hotly, "and he's about ten feet high. How am I going to sleep there, I'd like to know? Go and look at him."

In went Pullman—mad too. The tall, thin man's knees were under his chin, his arms were stretched across the bed, and his feet were stored comfortably—for him. Pullman shook him until he awoke and then told him if he wanted the whole berth he would have to pay $1.

"My dear sir," said the tall man, "a contract is a contract. I have paid you 50 cents for half this berth, and, as you see, I am occupying it. There's the other half," pointing to a strip about six-inches wide. "Sell that and don't disturb me again." And, so saying, the man with the wart on his face went to sleep again. He was Abraham Lincoln.

Dwight Curtis laughed again. "I wonder if your trials are as great as mine. I'm clubbing together with two other fellows, and trying to fill the wants of each and all is turning me gray. Moreover, I feel I'm getting the rickets from sprouting up so many flights of stairs."

"I have not," Dwight answered gravely, "though I repeat those phrases even in my sleep. I tell you what—why can't we hunt together? It will be a

An Ancient Telephone.

In 1788 M. Linquet de la Bastille issued a prospectus, published in the "Correspondence Secrète," London, 1788 (volume 14, page 302), of a singular machine or experience of the propagation of sound and the voice through tubes prolonged to a great distance. If it succeeded, he announced, people would be able to maintain with their sweethearts and friends at a distance of some hundreds of leagues a conversation which would "become somewhat public on the way, but by suppressing the names no one would be in the secret of the interlocutors." But it is not recorded that the scheme was put into practice. In a paper published in L'Illustration for 1854 by M. Charles Bourseul he says: "Let us imagine that a person speaks near to a mobile plate sufficiently flexible not to lose any of the vibrations produced by his voice and that this plate interrupts and establishes accordingly communication with a battery. Then we might have at a distance another plate which would give at the same time the same vibrations. An electric battery, two vibrating plates and a wire would be sufficient." In apportioning the honors of telephone discovery M. Bourseul at least would seem entitled to a share.

HOW TO GROW MINIATURE OAKS.

Secure a good ripe acorn and suspend it by a piece of cord within half an inch or so of water contained in a glass. There let it stay, for if permitted to remain without disturbance for a few months it will burst, send a root into the water and shoot upward a straight, tapering stem covered with beautiful little green leaves. In this manner a young oak tree can be cultivated and become an interesting object to all that behold it. As soon as the plant has made its appearance it will be found beneficial to change the water frequently.

Exhilarant Premiums.

"What would you think of a 99 per cent premium?" said an insurance agent. "A premium of $99,000 on a $1,000,000 policy. Hardly worth taking out, eh?" Such a policy was once taken out, though, on a ship thought to be lost. It is a common thing on overland ships to take out policies at 89 or 90 per cent. On the Bulgaria and the Croft in 1899 policies at 90 per cent were taken out, and on the Adelais Mary, even after two of her lifeboats had been picked up, a policy of 92 per cent was issued.

Enterprising Paris Boy.

The following is taken from a recent copy of a Pittsburg daily paper and is a very complimentary reference to a successful Paris boy:

—W. A. Parker, formerly of Paris, Ky., and Thomas C. Fogarty, for years one of the best known young men in the clothing trade here, have opened up a new clothing house at 210 Sixth street, under the firm name of Parker-Fogarty company. It will be devoted exclusively to the highest class of men's clothing, and promises to fill a long felt in Pittsburg.

The Parker-Fogarty company propose that the fit of every customer who leaves their store shall constitute an advertisement for them. No garment will be allowed to be taken away unless it is a perfect fit, whether it is dress suit or business wear. No tag or other marking on any garment from their store advertises the fact that it is custom made, and the quality and the cut are as perfect and as up-to-date as can be turned out of any tailoring establishment in the city. Indeed, the latest fashions in men's clothing as worn in New York and London will be a feature of the Parker-Fogarty store.

In short, it is a store where a customer, tall or short, stout or slim, can be fitted as perfectly as in the best tailor shop, in the latest styles and in the best goods and at prices better than the tailoring establishments can give. If the garments with the fit desired is not found hanging in their cases (no goods are left out on the counters or in piles) expert tailors are in constant readiness to alter and make the fit perfect. The finish of all their goods is all that the most fastidious buyer could ask, and every garment sold is guaranteed in quality, fit and finish before it is allowed to go out.

—A feature of the store is that the customer can see the goods hanging in glass-covered cases, each suit or garment by itself, and so knows just what he is getting. Their opening display, showing latest models and fabrics for the spring of 1907, in suits, topcoats, trousers and waistcoats is something to gladden the eyes of good dressers. Their full dress and Tweed suits at $35 to $50, and their silk-lined, full dress overcoats at $38, will warm the heart of the man who wants to be well dressed, but must be careful of his expenditures. Altogether, the Parker-Fogarty company store, the only exclusive men's clothing house in Pittsburg, is one calculated to attain the popular approval.

Card To Tobacco Growers.

County Chairman John A. LaRue has issued the following card to the tobacco growers of this county:

Your attention is called to an invitation from the people of Lexington to meeting and barbecue to be given in honor of the tobacco growing fraternity at Lexington Thursday, April 25.

It will be an occasion not only of interest to every man engaged in the tobacco business, but of the most serious importance in connection with the movement for higher prices and better conditions in which we are all now participating.

It will be a day for reports from every county in the tobacco growing district. The crop of 1906 is not yet sold, largely because the crop to be grown in 1907 is not yet signed. We believe, that when the 1907 crop has been properly signed the Trust will speedily take from our hands the tobacco now in the warehouses. Into her words, the Trust has been living, and is still living, on the tobacco it has been able to buy from parties who were unwilling to sign the 1906 crop. We must have the crop of 1907 signed at once.

Next Saturday, April 20, at 10 o'clock a. m., the Bourbon County Board of Control will meet at Paris. If you have not signed your tobacco for the coming year do not wait for the precinct chairman to call upon you but go at once to him and sign next year's crop in order that he may make his report at next Saturday's meeting. If you prefer, sign the contract and mail it to the undersigned chairman.

The work must be done within the coming week. If you are with us the time has come to show your faith. Every man who is interested in this movement for fair prices and a square deal will have signed his 1907 crop and placed his contract in the hands of this society on or before Saturday, April 20.

JOHN A. LARUE, Chairman.
